Dr. Klenz grew up in North Carolina and following college joined the United States Peace Corps. While in the Peace Corps in Southern Africa, she met her future husband, a fellow volunteer. Following her service, she went on to medical school at Duke University followed by residency training in Ob/Gyn at New York University.

Wanting to get back to a rural lifestyle, she and Kyle began their professional careers in the Rio Grande Valley of south Texas. They enjoyed 25 years living and working in the border towns of McAllen, Edinburg and Mission Texas. After retiring from her practice, they moved to a small ranch outside of Giddings, TX.
